Pre-College welcomes new faculty

Eleven new teachers have joined the Pre-College faculty, including several Gallaudet alumni.

Carolyn Perry, who is teaching math, and her husband, James Perry, who teaches social studies, both hold undergraduate degrees from the College. They come to the Model Secondary School for the Deaf (MSSD) from the Alabama School for the Deaf at Talladega.

Carol Ann Smalley, another new MSSD social studies instructor, is a product of the Gallaudet graduate program. She has taught at the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf. She student-taught at MSSD last year.

Pamela Qualls joins MSSD's communications department as speech pathologist from the Gallaudet audiology department.

Peter Yurkowski, new human sexuality specialist at MSSD, currently is studying linguistics at Gallaudet. He has taught at the St. Joseph School for the Deaf in New York.

Paul Johnston, a Rochester Institute of Technology and Penn State University graduate who has taught at the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (N.T.I.D.), is new to MSSD's art department. He has been an actor with the National Theatre of the Deaf. He is a sculptor of some renown; wood-working and furniture design are two of his special interests.

Del Wynne comes to MSSD's science department after teaching at the Rochester School for the Deaf. Frank Rupert, MSSD's new occupational education instructor, has taught in Ohio public schools.

John McNamara is doing his Clinical Fellowship Year (CFY) in audiology at MSSD, following a graduate internship at N.T.I.D. Susan Johnson is MSSD's CFY speech pathologist. Last year she was with St. Joseph's Medical Center in South Bend, Indiana.

Barbara Ellien, most recently with the Arizona Diagnostic Treatment and Education Center, is a new Special Opportunities Program instructor at KDES.

Because MSSD has such a large group of newcomers, Acting Principal Pete Hobbs has scheduled special orientation sessions to continue throughout the first term.

Awards recognize Plant employees

The Physical Plant Department held an awards ceremony last month to recognize those employees who have served the College in outstanding ways over the last year.

In addition to receiving service pins for at least 10 years of service to Gallaudet, employees were recognized for outstanding service and perfect attendance.

Employees of the year in seven areas of the department received plaques during the awards presentation. "These are people who have displayed a willingness to regularly go above and beyond their job requirements," explained Howard Cihak, director of the Physical Plant Department. "They are a credit to the department."

Bill Mosteller was named not only engineer of the year but was also recognized as the Physical Plant employee of the year.

Laurie Weaver was named support person of the year, Earlen Cunningham custodian of the year, and Michael Conneely maintenance person of the year.

Northwest Campus grows with new preparatory class

by Patricia Cinelli

The largest class ever of preparatory students in Gallaudet's history gathered at the Northwest Campus last month to begin their first year of college life. Approximately 330 students, 19 to 45 years old, went through an intense week and a half long orientation designed to introduce them to the college's people, buildings and programs.

Registration and orientation, for both parents and students, proceeded smoothly this year, the second for the new facility. "Anything's better than last year," joked Ann Davidson, dean of the School of Preparatory Studies (SPS). Campus construction and renovation have been completed on the 8.7 acre campus located in northwest Washington, D.C. According to Davidson, the wrinkles from last year have been ironed out and a number of innovative and exciting programs have been introduced.

"We set up five-member academic development teams for the first time. Each group of students have the same academic advisor, peer advisor, counselor, coordinator of resident education and student head resident advisor," explained Davidson. This provides closer coordination between professionals who work in the academic and student development areas. If there is a problem the team can respond to it together. "The academic team does some advising but it primarily exists to help students survive in the system," said Howard Busby, assistant dean, Student Affairs.

Integrating curriculum is another change being implemented this year at SPS, according to Davidson. Developmental Studies is a new course required of all students. It combines three previously required subjects; health, communication and psychology 44. In the past all three subjects have dealt with stress. Yet each had a different view. Now instructors have an opportunity to talk about the subject at the same time. "We are looking for carry over and integration in all our curriculum," said Davidson.

Not only the look of academic program has changed this year but also the look of average prep student, pointed out Busby. "He (or she) seems more mature behaviorally and is probably a little older," he said. The type of questions a student asks is different. Busby said students are more concerned with practical needs such as where do I cash a check. He also said that many questions students had last

Learning anew

In an effort to gain more insight into Gallaudet College and deafness, volunteers from the National Information Center on Deafness and the Visitors Center attended a lecture of the Deaf Enrichment Festival.

The volunteers and members of their families attended the lecture on deaf folklore presented by Francis C. Higgins, a professor who retired recently from the Chemistry Department. Afterwards, Higgins joined the group for dinner, where he continued to relate stories.

Persons interested in Gallaudet's volunteer program should contact Lupe Bryant at x5109.

Lunch is served

Lunch will be served at "Ole Jim" three times a week beginning Wednesday, Sept. 12. Lunch will be served each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

A lunch special entitled "Lettuce Entertain You" will be offered Sept. 12 in which persons can help themselves to all-you-can-eat salad at the salad bar and dessert for $3.95.

Prices for this academic year are as follows: $2.85 for a sandwich, $3.20 for soup and salad, $3.95 for soup and sandwich, $4.95 for the full buffet and $2.75 for salad. The selections include chips and garnishes with sandwiches, beverages and unlimited trips to the soup and salad bar, depending on the selection.

Master plan draft is now available

Copies of the initial draft of the Gallaudet College Master Plan are on reserve at the Learning Center and some copies are available at the Planning Office in House 2.

Gallaudet employees are urged to read the document, which has been submitted to the Board of Trustees for review at its October meeting. The master plan will serve as the basis for program-by-program planning which is beginning this fall.

The draft reflects the involvement of more than 100 members of the campus community in the planning process. The paper contains a general mission statement, proposed institution-wide goals and commentary which summarizes the diversity of campus views expressed on each issue.

Seventy-five copies of the draft have been distributed to faculty and staff members by Gallaudet's vice presidents.

year were answered for them this year in the student survival handbook.

An Alternative Learning Center has been created from the former tutorial center. ALC is a support system for classroom activities through the use of tutoring, self-paced learning and small group learning. It houses computer terminals, microcomputers and a testing service. Frances Croft, who is directing the ALC and is the tutorial specialist supervisor, said that a student can either be referred to the ALC or choose to use it on his own initiative. "Eventually I hope to integrate these services (provided by the ALC) more so we can meet individual student learning needs," said Croft. "There are some students who don't benefit from traditional methods of studying." These students could benefit from the ALC.

"We're trying to develop the idea of total student involvement," said Busby. The new programs and changes in SPS are all created with one goal in mind — the success of a student. Busby explained that they also have begun examining what kinds of systems are necessary for students who do not succeed in the preparatory program. "We want to find out what alternatives exist for those students who will not become freshmen," he said.

Book Sale

The College library will hold its "Fall Classic" book sale in October, with exact dates of the sale to be announced soon.

The library is accepting donations of old books and magazines. Contributions are tax-deductible.

Materials to be donated should be brought to Steven Frank in the Learning Center, Room ME 11.

Steven Jones was named Northwest Campus employee of the year, Joe Shell grounds person of the year and Frank Callahan supervisor of the year.

Six employees were recognized for perfect attendance during 1983. Homer Billups, Michael Conneely, Dick Lee, Larry Ott, James Robertson and Ossie Thomas were given eight hours of director's special leave for not missing a day's work in the last year.

Service pins were also presented during the afternoon, with Claude Brown, Earlen Cunningham, John Grigsby, Brenda Johnson and Ernestine Wells receiving 10-year service pins.

Bill DePhillip and Ray Horton received pins for 11 years of service while Homer Billups, Helen Bolden and Ossie Thomas were presented pins for 12 years of service.

Gloria Adams and Bernetha Mack received 13-year pins, George Debrah and Gail Levo 14-year pins and Elsie Houtman, Manfred Klatt and Marty Willigan received 15-year pins. Larry Dean was presented a pin for his 16 years of employment with Gallaudet while Bill Mosteller and Rosa Whitehead received pins for working at Gallaudet for 17 years.

Daisy Orr was presented a pin for her 18 years of service and Dick Hoke for his 19 years. Al Price received a 20-year pin, Joe Shell a pin for 21 years and Charles Robertson a pin for 22 years of service.

Joe Martin, who has worked at Gallaudet for 24 years, and Jessie Lynch, who has worked at Gallaudet for 25 years, also received pins, as did Clarence Hillery and Lawrence Daniels, with 27 and 28 years of service respectively.

Mattie Shell received a standing ovation from the group gathered at Elstad Auditorium as she was presented a gold pin by Cihak for her 38 years of service to Gallaudet.

Car renewal due

Motor vehicle registration for Gallaudet employees and students will continue through Sept. 30 at the Department of Safety and Security.

Registration is held Mondays through Fridays from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the department's office at Chapel Hall.

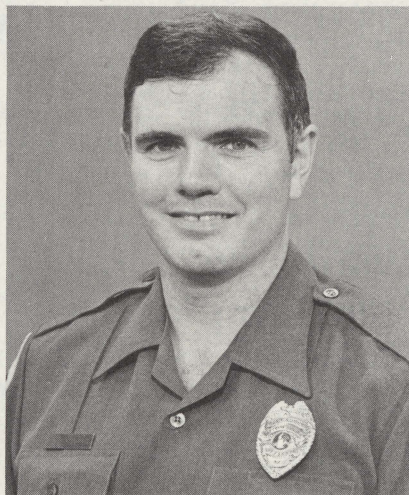

In order to register a vehicle for the 1984-85 academic year, insurance (including policy number and expiration or renewal date), a driver's license and registration must be provided. Anyone with outstanding traffic tickets will not be permitted to register an automobile on campus.

For more information about registration, contact Lyn Lawson or Floyd Holt at x5563.

Officer of the month program begins

Joseph Donhauser has been chosen as Officer of the Month for the month of June by the Department of Safety and Security. He was chosen by a review board of supervisors and other officers after becoming one of four finalists in an interdepartmental performance competition.

The Officer of the Month program was established to recognize outstanding members of the Department of Safety and Security, according to Floyd Holt, the department's director. The Officer of the Month program is based on a 20-category (38 point) system in which officers monitor their own progress. A pre-established number of points can be scored for a wide range of work performances, ranging from letters of commendation to perfect attendance, and from numbers of criminal arrests to most safety defects and deficiencies uncovered.

Donhauser joined the Department of Safety and Security in September of 1983. Prior to joining the Department of Safety and Security, he worked for several years as a hospital security officer and in private contract security with the Wells Fargo Corporation. He has a bachelor of arts degree in psychology from the University of Maryland Baltimore County.

Runners-up for the Officer of the Month were Investigator Billy Holman and officers Richard Urbanek and Gregory Livingston.
